With one-bedroom units starting at $625,000 — going up to $4.5 million for three-bedroom units with den — EastBanc's Westlight development at L and 23rd Streets NW is being shown to potential buyers by appointment. The 600- to 3,000-square-foot luxury condominiums feature amenities such as a 25-meter heated rooftop pool, an expansive sundeck, a fitness center, a private clubroom, a business center and, for those committed to braving metro-area traffic, an underground parking garage.

Also slated for the project are a 21,000-square-foot West End Neighborhood Library and 7,300 square feet of upscale retail.

The 71-unit building was designed by internationally acclaimed architect Enrique Norten of Mexico City, who also designed the 53rd Street branch of the New York Public Library, the Design 41 project in the Miami Design District and Rutgers Business School.
